Expansion and a fresh perspective

We are pleased to announce that the Review has expanded its perspective. The Rev. Ann C. Bateman, a retired United Methodist Deacon, now serves as the Managing Editor of the Review.

Ann's background includes a graduate degree in values, and experience in Christian Education, social concerns in faith communities, congregational outreach to the community, curriculum development, and congregational mediation. She brings renewed emphasis to the discussion topics with each article and the opportunity for the Review to spur dialogue within local congregations. "I was ordained to bridge the worlds of worship and work. The Review is an opportunity for me to introduce that bridge in a new way to each congregation that uses the Review," Ann observed.

"The Review is intended to be informative, to spur thought and discussion, and suggest possible action, all based on the values of the reader, not of us at the Review. Ann's experience in the local church setting as a Christian Educator enhances our capacity to achieve these goals with every issue," said Mark Bateman, publisher of the Review.

Express Your Values through Action

1. Evaluate your investments. Read the feature article on the new SEC Executive Compensation Reader (p. 2), the article about cause marketing (p.6), the article about corporate disability programs (p. 5), and the article on supply chain management (p.7). How might the information about particular companies impact your current investments or your votes in the upcoming proxy season? Consider these same questions for your congregation's investments.
2. Engage your community. Read the article on teen ethics (p.4) and share it with members of your school board and other organizations who work with teens. Read the article on corporate design (p. 8) and talk with members of your area economic development committee and others who bring new business to the community about values that are important to you and your congregation.
